

Dr. Jessica Bogard
Accredited Practicing Dietitian
and Nutrition System Scientist
CSIRO
Australia

Dr. Jessica Bogard is an Accredited Practicing Dietitian (APD) and Nutrition Systems Scientist with CSIRO - Australia's National Research Institute. As a dietitian and public health nutritionist, she works predominantly with 'non-nutritionists' on approaches to leveraging agriculture and food systems for better nutrition outcomes, particularly among vulnerable population groups including women and young children. Previously Dr. Bogard worked for WorldFish, one of the Consultative Group on International Agricultural Research (CGIAR) centers, developing approaches to integrate nutrition considerations into their work on food security related to fisheries and aquaculture. She completed her Ph.D. at the University of Queensland where she examined the contribution of fish to nutrition and food security in Bangladesh.

Sustainable Food System & Diets
Implication & Relevance for Nutrition Security

Contributed event organizer:

