Prof. Martin Cole
Head, School of Agriculture, Food and Wine at the University of Adelaide

Prof. Martin Cole is the Head of School of Agriculture, Food and Wine at the University of Adelaide and an internationally recognized food scientist with expertise in food safety, food trends and innovation, processing and nutrition, and the translation of science into community and commercial outcomes. He is also the Chair of the Steering Committee of the High Level Panel of Experts (HLPE) on Food Security and Nutrition of the United Nations (UN) Committee on World Food Security. Prior to joining the School in January 2020, Prof. Cole has held positions including Director of CSIRO Food and Nutrition, and Director of the US National Center for Food Safety and Technology, the largest and most successful centre of excellence of the US Food and Drug Administration (FDA).